PROGRAM: “BIM in the Field”

Building information modeling (BIM) has been widely adopted by the AEC industry for design and detailed preconstruction coordination, but direct use of BIM in the field is still gaining ground. In this session, learn some strategies and proven practices applying BIM and technology to the construction process. We will cover the following topics: construction logistics, mock-ups/visualization, digital layout, laser scanning, 4D sequencing, quantity take-offs, supply chain management, Skanska Digital Resource Stations, field notebooks & tablets, and a general overview of some approaches/software for facility management.

About the Speaker

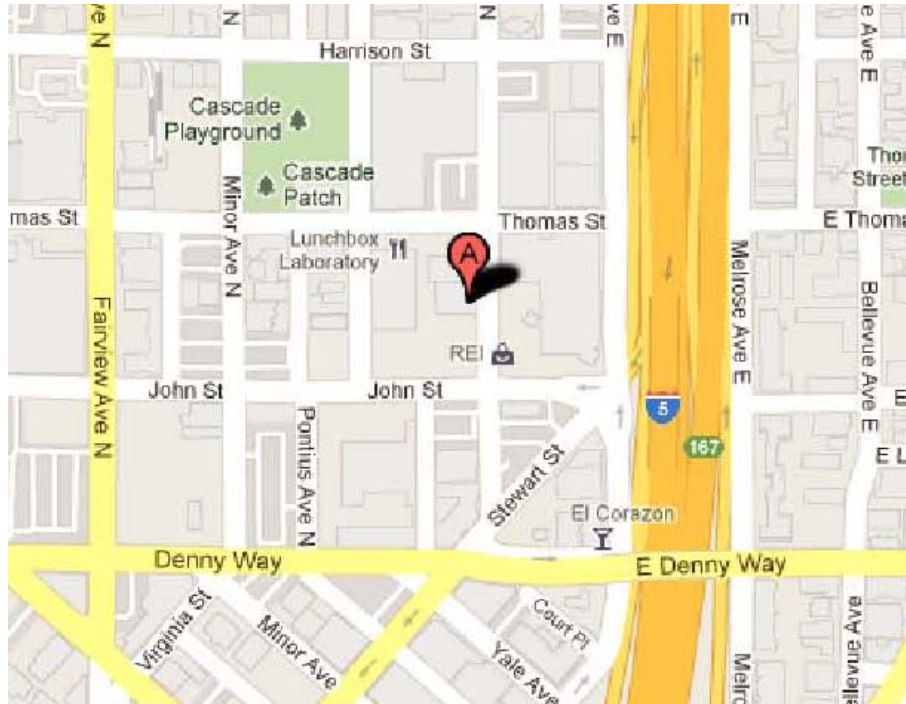

Helen Juan is the Virtual Design and Construction (VDC) Manager for Skanska USA Building, Seattle. She has been in the construction industry for 11 years, which included serving as an owner's representative, construction manager for military projects overseas, and BIM coordinator on complex healthcare projects.
